Accident and Emergency

“I remember getting to Accident and Emergency when I had encephalitis because there were lots of people running around me and they all looked worried. There were lots of doctors and nurses and I was very frightened. Mum was with me but she was crying and I thought I was going to die.

That’s where I first met Nurse Anna who came from the intensive care department to look after me. She told me that they would have to put a tube in my mouth to help me breathe and give me some medicine to put me into a deep sleep. She told me that I would wake up a little but later. She was really nice and mum seemed much calmer after she had spoken to her. It was a very frightening day but I’m glad there were so many people there to take care of me.”
