Schoolwork after ABI

“Everyone in the family can be affected when someone gets an ABI. That includes brothers and sisters too!

When Amy first got sick, I couldn't concentrate on the schoolwork that my teacher had set for me. I just can't concentrate! The teacher caught me daydreaming a few times and I was also quite tearful.

At first I didn't want to tell the teacher what was happening but mum phoned up one day and told them about Amy. My teacher then knew what was wrong with me and why I was finding it so hard to concentrate. I was too worried about Amy!

The teacher was really nice to me and made sure that I was always doing something that would take my mind off things. She also helped me when I found the work too difficult because I couldn't concentrate in class.

If you are struggling with schoolwork, you should tell your teacher too. They might be able to help.”
