Feeling confused after ABI

"I know just how Amy feels. It is hard enough trying to understand why the accident happened but then you have lots of other stuff to feel confused about too. For me, I really started to get confused when I started to adjust.

The thing that got me was not being able to do the things that I used to do really well before. I used to be good at art and now some days I find it really hard to hold a pencil. That can be really confusing because I know what I want to draw, I just can't seem to draw it!

I have other problems too. I sometimes find it hard to understand what my friends are saying. I used to get all of their jokes but I don't anymore. If they talk too fast I find it hard to understand what they are saying. I get confused and don't get the joke."
